IN MEMORY OF MRS. BELLE JONES

When the spirit of this estimable, Christian lady took its flight Tuesday morning the 19th inst., there was removed from the social walks of life a pure and spotless woman, one who was loved by a large circle of friends, and worshipped by four loving children and a devoted husband.

Born and reared in Columbia, testimony upon testimony could be given of her pure life here.

After her marriage to Mr. G. F. Jones she became a resident of Jamestown where she lived happily surrounded for more than twenty-five years.

She was a long sufferer, but no word of complaint ever fell from her lips. Born of Christian parents, H. G. and Eliza Atkins, she was taught to believe that God did all things for the best, and while her body was sorely afflicted she never lost faith in the Giver of all that is good, looking to Him for a brighter and peaceful home beyond the skies. As an evidence of her goodness the rearing of four high-minded, dutiful children is the best earthly evidence that she was diligent in her admonitions for good. It is said that she never received an angry word from one of them, and their conduct has been such as to require no words of reproof from her.

When friends separate, one going on a long journey, with the hope of meeting again, the shaking of the hand is a serious thing and the word "farewell" hard to say, but to take leave of a dear mother though she leaves evidence that her spirit has gone to a better world, no pen can picture the anguish. No sadder words were ever written than "mother is dead," and it would take hearts of stone to not overflow with sorrow when such an affliction comes to their family.

The devotion of the bereaved husband and his four children to this wife and mother has never been surpassed, so watchful were they to see that every earthly wish was gratified.

Her children are all members of the church, and while it is impossible for them to ever see their mother again in the flesh, they can so live that when life's troubles are over they can meet her in that heavenly home where there is no sorrow and where separations are unknown.

The funeral services were conducted at Jamestown Wednesday afternoon, by Eld. Z. T. Williams, of the Christian church, who spoke in the tenderest sympathy of the life and character of this good woman.

In health she was an active church and temperance worker, being a devoted Methodist and a zealous member of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

To the husband, a life long friend, to the children, brothers and sisters, I tender my deepest sympathy.

J. E. MURRELL.

Tough on the Legislature.

A young gentleman of this county was engaged to a charming young girl in Tennessee, and just before the holidays he went to pay her a visit. The day for the wedding was drawing near and the groom-elect thought he detected some kind of a sad expression in the eyes of the fair young thing, and right he was. She approached him one evening, just as the Western sun was setting in the Western part of the West, and looking up into his tender red eyes she said: "William, I have a secret and my conscience smites me until I have to tell you. It is this, Willie, my father served a term in the Tennessee State Prison. It was no fault of mine Willie, and do you still love me?" "Glad you brought up this confession business," said Willie. "I too, have a secret" and then he looked sad, "Mabel, Willie's white lips faltered, "my father served a term in the Kentucky Legislature," and Mabel, the mean thing, shook him, and he's now at home retailing shoes and cussing—Vine Grove Herald.

"I bobbled into Mr. Blackmon's drug store one evening, says Wesley Nelson, of Hamilton, Ga., "and he asked me to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm for rheumatism with which I had suffered for a long time. I told him I had no faith in any medicine as they all failed. He said: 'Well if Chamberlain's Pain Balm does not help you you need not pay for it.' I took a bottle of it home and used it according to the directions and in one week I was cured, and have not since been troubled with rheumatism." Sold by M. Cravens.

Women Soldiers.

Mrs. Mary Sawyer, who now lives at Sawyer's Springs, on Walden's Ridge, a short distance from Chattanooga, Tenn., has been a most remarkable woman in business as well as the social life of Rhea county, Tenn., where she was born and reared, and has an interesting history. During the war Mrs. Sawyer raised and equipped a company of young girls, which was mustered into the Confederate army. Mrs. Sawyer was Miss Mary McDonald, of Ross county. She was, at the outbreak of the war, a young woman, in her teens, and the belle of Rhea county. As the Federal forces began encroaching Southward the original idea entered the mind of Miss McDonald to raise a company of young girls for the Confederacy. This was in 1862, and she lost no time in carrying this idea into practical effect, organizing a company of something over 100 girls. She was elected Captain of the company which was actually mustered into the service at Washington, Rhea county, Tenn., by Capt. W. T. Darwin, of General Bragg's army.

Most of the young women realized that the company was organized more as a bit of pastime, but Capt. McDonald's foresight had long before seen where such a body could be of practical value, and no sooner were they mustered in than she began putting them through such drills, teaching how to dress wounds, and was just beginning to receive equipment from the Confederacy, the use of which she was setting about to teach her company, when the Federals entered Chattanooga.

Gen. Steadman sent a certain Capt. Wild up to Rhea county, who very ungalantly arrested the entire company, including the Captain, and brought them to Chattanooga, where they were arranged before Gen. Steadman in his headquarters in what is now the local guard's armory. Here the young women were requested to take the oath of allegiance to the Federal Government. Some of them were a trifle unruly, and Gen. Steadman was given more than one sample of Rhea county "sass," but when he finally threatened to send the entire company to Ohio the girls, urged by anxious relatives, all took the oath, and after dinner at the old Planter's House, returned to their homes.

A number of women now residing in Chattanooga were members and officers in this company, and entertain pleasant recollections of the time when the girls of Rhea county started to turn the tide of the war in favor of the Confederacy.

Remember This.

A newspaper in any town may expend all of its efforts, its time, its space and interest in the attempt to upbraid the town, but unless its efforts are backed by the business men of the town its work may be counted as high useless.

When a stranger picks up your town paper he will glance for a moment over your news column and then turn to the advertising pages. If he finds its columns bare, he sets it down that there is nothing in the town or that its citizens do not appreciate the efforts of the paper and that they are just as liable to not appreciate his own efforts were he to locate there.

You never saw a town yet that ever amounted to a hill of beans without the assistance of a newspaper. This being a fact we would also remind you that a newspaper cannot live without the assistance of the town.

The sooner business men find that in supporting their local paper they are also building up their own business, for the business man and the newspaper, and the town. In supporting your local paper you are not only assisting your town as a business center, but your newspaper as an enterprise and as a medium to the outside world, but your own business as well. It is as much the duty of the business man to support his town paper as it is for the town paper to support and expand the interest of his town.—New Haven Leader.

Mr. J. Richardson had a running sore on his leg for twenty years. Tried doctors and medicines without end, or any permanent good. Mr. L. B. Nunnally, druggist, Hartford, Iowa, recommended Morley's Sarsaparilla and Iron to cure the cause of the sore and make it heal from the inside. A few bottles cured his leg, and put him in better health than he has been in for 20 years. Ask your druggist.

Six Months Pork.

It is a common practice for men who know their business and do it to grow six months pigs to weigh 200 pounds a piece, and sell them at a better price per pound than if older. Pigs make fat and flesh at less cost during the first six months of their lives than ever after. Up to six months pigs rightly fed can almost be seen to grow from day to day.

When the young pigs are old enough they should be allowed the run of a pasture field where clover is pretty thick. Turn them loose in the field with the sow. If the field has plenty of good, fresh running water in it, and ample shade for the animals, they will do much better and not suffer drawbacks from the heat. The sow should be fed freely on milk slops with bran mixed in it, and when the pigs are old enough let them eat with the mother. Liberal feeding of this mixture should not be turned into wasteful practice. Give only as much as they will eat up clean at a time. Feeding twice a day is better than heavy feeding once a day. With this bran, milk and clover ration the pigs can get along without any trouble for two months or more, and they will grow rapidly during the whole time, when they are two months old a little corn may be fed to them, give them about one ear a day along with the bran and buttermilk slops. The corn adds to their fat and strength and the liberal feeding of clover keeps the system in excellent condition.

At the end of four months the pigs should be old enough to stand heavier and more heating diet, and it is well to substitute for the corn, bran and milk slops a diet of bran and cornmeal softened with water and mixed to the stiffness of a dough. Feed this to them twice a day and give them as much as they will eat up clean at a time. Then turn them loose in the clover field as before, and let them eat in addition all the grass that they will. Finally during the last month of their lives confine them in close but perfectly clean quarters and fatten them off with cornmeal and bran. Give them twice as much of the former as the latter, and let them eat liberally of the mixture. At the end of the six months they should be fine, fat pigs, weighing from 200 to 240 pounds each, and every pound will represent a good profit.—Ex.

Poultry Tips.

Watch for hen lice on chicks—oil or grease the heads.

Never nail a roost down. Make it as easy as possible to lift up.

Be ready for frosted combs. If the combs are nipped apply vaseline at once.

Paint the under side of the roosts with lard or oil on the hill. Smear it on. The mites can't stand it.

We want to hear from parties who have fed hens in large quantities to hens. Ever know a death from this cause?

The so-called Douglas mixture for hens is a small quantity of sulphate of iron dissolved in the drinking water. Some poultrymen believe that rusty nails are just as good.

The National Provisioner in enumerating the various performances of the poultry tribe, gives the following: An old hen knocked a youngster down in the road in defence of her brood, it's father killed the miscreant, the owner burned his barn and horses, and a lynching mob was organized.

The old theory that that exercise was necessary for hens. Thus we were advised to throw the whole grain into the straw and make the hens scratch for it. People seem to think this theory was true because it ought to be. Experiments at the Utah experiment station show that the hens did rather better without this exercise.—Ex.

A Fireman's Close Call.

"I stuck to my engine, although every joint ached and every nerve was racked with pain," writes C. W. Bellamy, a locomotive fireman, of Burlington, Iowa. "I was weak and pale, without any appetite and all run down. As I was about to give up, I got a bottle of Electric Bitters and, after taking it, I felt as well as I ever did in my life." Weak, sickly, run down people always gain new life, vigor and strength from their use. Try them. Satisfaction guaranteed by T. E. Paull. Price 50c.

THREE GREAT SPEECHES.

Extracts From Bryan, Altgeld and Towne at the Columbus Banquet.

BRYAN ON JEFFERSON.

"At this time, when the money changers are in absolute control of the Government and are shaping the nation's financial policy in their own interests, without regard for the welfare of the people at large, we need to recall Jefferson's scathing arraignment of those who demand the surrender into their hands of the sovereign functions of government.

"He pointed out that the safety of the people lay in a policy that would drive the banks out of the governing business.

"At this time, when corporate monopoly is fast extinguishing industrial independence, we need a revival of the Jeffersonian spirit which demands a government administered according to the doctrine of equal rights to all and special privilege to none.

"At this time, when commercialism is searing the conscience of the nation; when the worship of mammon is leading the people to ignore inalienable rights; when the ideals bought with blood and sacrifice are about to be bartered away for the specious and delusive promises of empire—at this time, I repeat, we need to have our faith in man as man and our love for man as brother rekindled by the memory of this mighty patriot, philosopher and Democrat, whose brain comprehended height and depth and breadth of government and whose heart embraced the human race."

ALTGELD ON JACKSON.

"Attend one of the modern great political convention of either party, and see the hungry, self-seeking, trimming politicians that gather there. Some of them had indeed been in high office for many years. Look at their bleared eyes, see their shriveled, wrinkled little souls—watch them as they slip around through the political underbrush, and you will say to yourself, these men have thrown away their inheritance.

"Let me say here, my friends, if we never do anything more, we did the country a service in 1896 by bringing the Democratic party up out of the swamps and underbrush and taking a position in the sunlight on the highlands.

"We are not offering the young men offices, but we offer what is a thousand times greater than all the offices put together, and that is a career, an opportunity to work in the vineyard of mankind, to fight the battle of the lowly; an opportunity to help the man that is doing the world's work, to protect the children that are being robbed of their bread, to protect the weak from the greed of the strong.

"We offer no place on the hill, but we offer what is a thousand times greater and better, an opportunity to assist in lighting the hovels of the poor, in driving want and hunger from the cheeks of toil and lifting the hopes of the sons of men."

TOWNE ON LINCOLN.

"Three cries mark the life of the republic. The first involved the origin of the Union and embraced the revolution and the era of uncertainty ending with the adoption of the Federal Constitution. This was the age of Jefferson, of Washington, of Adams, of Hamilton and their co-peers. The second involved the integrity of the Union and the preservation of cementation of the national life. This was the age of Lincoln. The third is now upon us, and it constitutes the supreme test of all. It is to decide whether this republic, strong enough to defy all external enemies, and nurtured into a solidarity of national feeling and purpose, can now resist the disintegrating allurements of conquest before which all preceding great nations in history have fallen to the dust.

"This, fellow Democrats, is then the duty of the hour—to save the faith of our fathers, and with it the life of the nation they founded and its mission in the world. We are the true conservatives. We stand upon the ancient ways. We enwrap ourselves in the glorious ensign of the republic blazoned with the legends of the Declaration of Independence and the guarantees of the constitution, invoking the benign shades of the heroes of our history, and pledging ourselves to maintain and transmit those peculiar and priceless principles of equality, liberty, and self-government which were announced by Jefferson, defeated by Jackson and exemplified by Abraham Lincoln."

Chinese Perversity.

The Chinaman shakes his own head instead of yours.

He keeps out of step when walking with you.

He puts his hat on in salutation.

He whitens his boots instead of blacking them.

He rides with his heels in the stirrups instead of his toes.

His compass points south.

His women folks are often seen in trousers, accompanied by men in gowns.

Often he throws away the fruit of the melon and eats the seeds.

He laughs on receiving bad news (this to deceive evil spirits.)

His left hand is the place of honor.

He thinks it polite to ask your age and income.

He says west-north instead of north-west, and sixth-four instead of four-sixth.

His favorite present to a parent is a coffin.

Danger of Colds and Lagrippe.

The greatest danger from colds and lagrippe is their resulting in pneumonia. If reasonable care is used, however, and Chamberlain's Cough Remedy taken, all danger will be avoided. Among the tens of thousands who have used this remedy for these diseases we have yet to learn of a single case having resulted in pneumonia, which shows conclusively that it is a certain preventive of that dangerous malady. It will cure a cold or an attack of lagrippe in less time than any other treatment. It is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by M. Cravens who guarantees every bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and will refund the money to anyone who is not satisfied after using two-thirds of the contents. This is the best remedy in the world for lagrippe, coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough and is pleasant and safe to take. It prevents any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia.

Word Painting.

The following from the La Grange Graphic is one of the prettiest sermons ever printed in so few words: "I saw a dancing bubble upon the silvery surface of a restless river. For a moment it sparkled with golden light as it caught and held the sunshine glory, and I thought how beautiful it was. Then it went down. For a moment the river told where it had vanished, and then swept on without even a ripple on its placid bosom. And I thought how like our lives was the bubble on the river. For a moment we sparkle in our tiny spheres, hope and toil and struggle, love and long and dream and then go down beneath the surface for ever. In a short time the tiny ripples we have caused die out, and the great river of humanity flows on undisturbed. So let us strive within our brief existence to reflect only the sunshine, in the clouds above us.

The claim of other cough medicines to be as good as Chamberlain's are factually set at rest in the following testimonial of Mr. C. D. Glass, an employee of Bartlett & Dennis Co., Gardiner, Me. He says: "I had kept adding to a cold and cough in the winter of 1897, trying every cough medicine I heard of without permanent help, until one day I was in the drug store of Mr. Houlehan and he advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and offered to pay back my money if I was not cured. My lungs and bronchial tubes were very sore at this time, but I was completely cured by this remedy and have since always turned to it when I got a cold, and soon find relief. I always recommend it to my friends and am glad to say it is the best of all cough medicines." For sale by M. Cravens.

The overflow of a river caused the loss of many lives and property damage aggregating a million dollars at Lima, Peru.

Nervous Prostration.

Mrs. Lettie Fisher says: I had nervous trouble for years, which at times completely prostrated me and made life not worth living. I tried many physicians and no end of nerve and other remedies without relief. Mr. M. J. Crews, merchant, Maloy, Iowa, persuaded me to try Morley's Sarsaparilla and Iron. The very first bottle went to the right spot, for I felt a complete change and now, after using six bottles in all I am perfectly well. Sold by agent in every town.
